Violation Types: 2009-2010 Academic Year

The University's Academic Integrity Policy and Procedures groups violations into four categories: 1) Use of Source, 2) Course Work and Research, 3) Representations and Materials Misuse and 4) Communications. This section describes each category type and lists violations and outcomes for the 2009-2010 academic year. For confidentiality purposes, all personally identifiable information has been omitted.

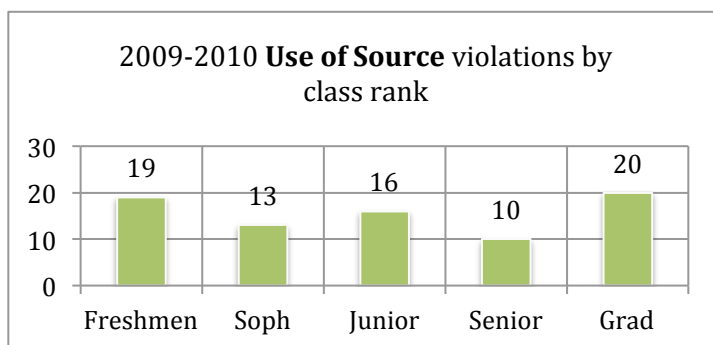

Four-Year Comparison: Violations by Type

1) Use of Source

Use of Source (plagiarism) violations were the most-reported type in three out of the last four academic years. Seventy-eight plagiarism cases were reported in the 2009-2010 academic year, representing 48% of the year's over-all violation referrals. Internet-related plagiarism accounted for 83% of Use of Source cases.

2) Coursework and Research

The coursework and research category encompasses six types of offenses: the use or attempt to use an authorized aid during an exam; unethical reporting of research data; copying from another student's work; destroying or altering another student's work; unauthorized cooperation on exams and assignments; and submitting the same work in more than one course without prior approval.

In the 2009-2010 academic year, 63 Coursework and Research cases were referred. Of them, 40 cases of unauthorized cooperation on coursework and exams were reported.
